BACKGROUND AND LEGISLATION

BACKGROUND

Many young Australians have mental health issues which can have lifetime impacts. In Australia one in seven 4 to 17 years old's experience a mental health condition every year<sup>1</sup>.

Mental health and wellbeing for young children is about their emotions, what they experience and how they learn to manage and express them, the relationships they form and their ability to engage in close and positive relationships. A strong sense of wellbeing and positive mental health provides children with confidence and optimism, which maximises their learning potential, gives them a greater chance of long-term success, and helps them build stronger relationships.

Early intervention can improve children's mental health, and in turn, their lifetime outcomes. Good mental health in early childhood also provides a solid foundation for managing the transition from childhood to adolescence and adulthood. Early childhood services play a key role in promoting mental health and wellbeing in children and can affect children's long-term mental health, relationships and learning.

The Early Years Learning Framework (the Framework) was developed to extend and enrich children's learning from birth to five years. Outcome 3 of the Framework talks about children having a strong sense of wellbeing. It guides early childhood practitioners in facilitating a learning environment that supports both physical and psychological development

Obligations under Child Safe Standard 8 requires staff and volunteers to be trained and supported to effectively implement the organisation's child safety and wellbeing policy. This Standard links to Standards 1 and 5, with all three Standards placing obligations on organisations to provide training and information for staff and volunteers on building safe environments for children and young people.

The Social Services Standards are a consistent set of obligations that social service providers in Victoria must meet. Standard 1 - Safe Service Delivery, and Standard 6 - Safe Workforce, incorporates protecting and supporting the mental health of service users and staff, using current evidence based practice, including trauma-informed practice.

Trauma-informed practice is crucial as it recognises and responds to the impact of traumatic experiences on children and young people. This approach fosters a safe, supportive, and nurturing environment, which is essential for healthy development and learning. By understanding and addressing the unique needs of children and young people who have experienced trauma, educators and program staff can help mitigate the adverse effects, promote resilience, and create a foundation for positive emotional and cognitive growth. This compassionate and informed strategy is directly linked to the mental health and wellbeing of children and young people, as it helps to regulate their emotions, build a sense of security, and encourage healthy coping mechanisms.

Family-centred practice - Practice which:

- uses families' understanding of their children to support shared decision-making about each child's learning and development
- creates a welcoming and culturally inclusive environment, where all families are encouraged to participate in and contribute to children's learning and development
- actively engages families and children in planning children's learning and development
- provides feedback to families on each child's learning and provide information about how families can further advance children's learning and development at home and in the community

Mental health and wellbeing: For the purposes of this policy and for the Healthy Early Childhood Services Achievement Program, the 'Mental Health and Wellbeing' health priority area focuses on social and emotional wellbeing and resilience.

Mental health in early childhood can be understood as a young child's ability to 'experience, regulate and express emotions; form close and secure interpersonal relationships; and explore the environment and learn – all in the context of family, community and cultural expectations for young children. Infant mental health is synonymous with healthy social and emotional development

Trauma Informed Practice: A strengths-based framework where trauma survivors are seen as individuals, who have experienced extremely abnormal situations and who manage the best as they can.
